About the Editors

Paula Conru graduated in 1989 from Georgetown University with a B.S. degree in languages. She has studied in both France and Germany and speaks French and German proficiently. Originally from Vermont, Ms. Conru now lives in Anchorage, Alaska, where she works for the state legislature.

Vickie Lewelling, a graduate of the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, holds a B.A. degree from the Department of Special Programs with a focus in Scandinavian Studies. She has studied in Denmark and is proficient in several Scandinavian languages. Ms. Lewelling is currently Publications Coordinator and Assistant Director of the ERIC Clearinghouse on Languages and Linguistics in Washington, D.C.

Whitney Stewart graduated from Brown University with a B.A. degree in linguistics and children's literature. She has studied several foreign languages including French, German, Spanish, Italian, Tibetan, and American Sign Language, and has travelled throughout Europe and Asia. Ms. Stewart, a children's book author, lives in Göttingen, Germany. Her most recent publication is To the Lion Throne: A Children's Biography of the Dalai Lama, Snow Lion Publications.

Preface

This directory is an expanded and updated version of the Directory of Foreign Language Service Organizations, first published by the Center for Applied Linguistics in 1978 and revised in 1981 and 1985. Many new organizations have been added since the last edition. The directory is intended for several audiences. Language educators will find it useful as a guide to resources and services that can help them enrich their classroom instruction. Students should find the directory valuable for locating educational and employment opportunities in the field of foreign or second language education. The directory is also meant for anyone interested in the study or advancement of foreign languages and cultures. While the editors have made every attempt to make this new directory as comprehensive as possible, it should be noted that there are some organizations that either did not respond to our inquiries or did not wish to be included.

With 128 organizations listed, the guide includes a language and subject index that will help the reader find information on such topics as international exchange programs, foreign language teaching materials, translation services, and computer-assisted language learning.

The directory is divided into the following sections: individual listings of foreign language service organizations; a list of applied linguistics organizations affiliated with the Association Internationale de Linguistique Appliquée (AILA); information on English as a foreign language teaching opportunities abroad; a list of Multifunctional Resource Centers; a list of National Resource Centers for foreign language and area studies; resources and materials; and a language and subject index.

The directory may be used in several ways. For example, a teacher of Arabic wanting to develop a new curriculum could consult the index under "Arabic" or "Less Commonly Taught Languages," or the resources chapter could be consulted for foreign language teaching materials. Students wishing to spend a summer abroad could consult the index under "Study Abroad" or under the individual native language(s) of the country where they wish to study. In addition, each organization contains a special "Services" section, which may be consulted for special activities or opportunities.

It should be noted that for dialing telephone numbers in the United States from abroad, the country code number "1" should be added before each telephone number.

The editors welcome your comments on this new edition of the directory. We hope you will find it useful.

English as a Foreign Language Teaching Opportunities Abroad

Teaching English as a foreign language (EFL) offers varied employment possibilities. For people wishing to live in another country for a period of time, there are teaching opportunities outside the United States. This section provides information on where to look for EFL teaching opportunities abroad.

Considerations in Teaching EFL Outside of the United States

- English language education, like science or mathematics education, is a discipline, and the ability to speak English does not necessarily qualify a person to teach it as a foreign language.
- One should have at least an undergraduate degree, preferably in a foreign language, English, or a related field. Classroom teaching experience and graduate coursework in linguistics or TEFL/TESL are also important, though not necessarily required by foreign employers.
- Every summer, Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL) sponsors a summer institute at a university where leading educators offer intensive three or six week courses to newcomers in the field, and where participants can obtain graduate credit.
- Native English speakers can often obtain freelance tutoring positions in countries where English is not the first language. However, it can be difficult to make enough money to live on, especially in large cities.

- Native English speakers are sometimes hired at language schools, even though they do not possess teaching qualifications or credentials in the field of English language teaching. This is not an ideal situation for students or teachers, however, and salaries may be low.

Qualifications and Salaries in Various Parts of the World

Qualifications and salaries depend on the country and the type of institution in which an individual obtains a teaching position. Some basic information is provided below.

Africa. TEFL and related qualifications are prerequisites for teaching at the university level; requirements for teaching experience depend on the particular institution or country. The demand is great for instructors who are qualified to teach English for academic purposes and technical and business English, as well as for specialists in curriculum design, teacher training, material development, and administration. Salaries are modest and vary according to the type of teaching institution.

Asia. There is a continuing need for EFL teachers, especially in China and Japan. Teaching opportunities also exist in Malaysia, Singapore, Hong Kong, and Sri Lanka. An M.A. in TEFL is preferred. Salaries and benefits can vary greatly within a single nation.

Latin America. Government regulations dictate employment terms for foreign language teaching professionals. Preference is given to teachers with TEFL qualifications, with the highest demand for instructors who have the ability to teach all four language skills. Salaries are reported to be low. Major employers are USIA-sponsored binational centers, especially in universities in Peru and Mexico.

Middle East. The Middle East is a major employer of EFL instructors. Salaries tend to be high and benefits are excellent. TEFL credentials are preferred, but an M.A. or Ph.D. in English, linguistics, or literature suffices. Instructors are usually required to have substantial international teaching experience, and must be able to teach English for special or academic purposes.

Europe. The employment situation for EFL teachers in Europe, with the exceptions of Spain and Portugal, is limited because high unemployment rates render it difficult for Americans to get work permits. A Master's degree in TEFL or other EFL qualifications are generally prerequisites. Salaries and benefits are diverse (Gonzalez & Schott, 1987).

General Information Sources on Teaching English Abroad

TESOL publishes a placement bulletin six times a year that features job notices and offers employment information to individuals interested in teaching outside of the United States. TESOL also holds an employment clearinghouse at its annual international convention. Contact TESOL to subscribe to the bulletin and to find out when the next regional TESOL conference will be held in your area. Conference attendance may also put newcomers in contact with individuals in the field who may be able to direct them to job leads in another country. Contact TESOL, 1600 Cameron Street, Suite 300, Alexandria, VA 22314-2751, (703) 836-0774.

International Employment Hotline ($28/yr) is a monthly newsletter that publishes information on overseas employment, including information on teaching positions. For information, write Cantrell Corp., P.O. Box 6170, McLean, VA 22106.

ELS International recruits EFL teachers for its overseas programs. For more information contact ELS International, 5761 Buckingham Pkwy., Culver City, CA 90230, (800) 468-8978 outside California, or (213) 642-4618.

American Language Academy has several schools in Venezuela. For more information, contact American Language Academy, 11426 Rockville Pk., Suite 200, Rockville, MD 20852 (301) 984-3400.

Peace Corps. Teaching positions are available in elementary, secondary, normal, or vocational schools and universities, and no teaching experience is required. For information, contact: Peace Corps Recruiting Office, Recruitment Resources, 1990 K Street, NW, Washington, DC 20526, (800) 424-8580 or (202) 606-3387.

Teaching in International Schools

Opportunities for teaching and coordinating EFL at the elementary/secondary level exist in international and American schools in more than 300 countries throughout the world. Most schools are accredited, which not only ensures good quality education, but also allows teachers to return to employment in the United States with recognized teaching experience.

The qualifications needed for all accredited international schools are, at least, a BA/BS degree and valid teaching certification from a state education authority in a minimum of one subject area. Many schools also require two years of teaching experience.

In addition to the sources listed above, specific information on teaching opportunities in international schools can be obtained from the following sources:

Department of State, Office of Overseas Schools will provide information on overseas American-sponsored elementary and secondary schools. For more information, write A/OS, R245, SA-29, U.S. Dept. of State, Washington, DC 20520-2902, (703) 875-7800.

Department of Defense Schools (DoDDS) hire a number of EFL staff for their schools in various parts of the world. Although the clientele is American military, there is a need to provide special services to children entering the schools speaking a language other than English. For information, write or call DoDDS, 2461 Eisenhower Ave., Alexandria, VA, 22331, (202) 325-0885.

ARAMCO or the Arabian American Oil Co. (Foreign Service Employment) places qualified teachers in Saudi Arabia. ARAMCO, P.O. Box 4530, Houston, TX 77210, (713) 432-4014.

International Schools Services, Inc. (ISS) is a non-profit organization that recruits teachers in the United States to match educational openings abroad. ISS holds an annual conference where recruiters interview applicants. There is a registration fee for participation in the conference and a placement fee ($600 in 1990) that is paid either by the individual or the school. For more information on ISS, call (609) 452-0990 or write ISS, P.O. Box 5910, Princeton, NJ 08543.

American International School. For information on teaching opportunities outside of the United States, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: American International School, EISN, P.O. Box 662, Newton, MA 02161-0002.

University of Northern Iowa (UNI), Overseas Placement Service for Educators sponsors an annual recruiting fair. UNI's fair provides prospective candidates with an opportunity to interview with representatives from more than 60 international schools. Typically, one third of the applicants find jobs at the fair. There is a fee of $60 ($100 for teaching couples). UNI also provides periodic vacancy newsletters for all registrants ($35 if not registered), December through August. UNI Overseas Placement Service for Educators, Student Services Center, Rm 19, Cedar Falls, IA, 50614-0390, (319) 273-2083.

National Teacher Placement Bureaus of America operates a number of recruiting services each year. Registration and placement fees are about 6 1/2 % of the first year's salary. National Teacher Placement Bureaus of America, P.O. Box 09027, 4190 Pearl Rd., Cleveland, OH 44109, (216) 741-3771.

The following is a list of other fairs or agencies:

- Educational Career Services, 405 Hilgard Ave., Los Angeles, CA 90024, (213) 825-2981.
- Association of American Schools in South America, Inc., FIU-Bay Vista Campus, Biscayne Blvd. at 151 St., N. Miami, FL 32611.

Multifunctional Resource Centers

In 1974, Public Law 93-380 amended the previous bilingual education law, expanding its scope and authorizing new activities. These activities addressed the need for training bilingual education personnel and for planning and providing technical assistance. Various types of centers were initiated in 1976, and today these Multifunctional Resource Centers (MRCs) are involved in many of the activities directed by the Bilingual Education Act. MRCs have been established for the purposes of providing technical assistance and training. MRC activities include developing goals; planning or implementing programs; and providing advice, support, and problem solving through consultations and referrals, to educators and parents of limited English proficient students.

The U.S. Department of Education has a requirement to establish and operate 16 MRCs. Each MRC is responsible for providing information and services in a particular geographic region. In addition, each MRC is responsible for collecting and disseminating information on a particular area of bilingual education. These areas include bilingual special education, bilingual education for gifted and talented students, bilingual vocational education, literacy, educational technology in bilingual programs, mathematics and science education in bilingual programs, counseling limited English proficient students, and career education programs for limited English proficient students.

A list of the currently funded MRCs is provided on the following pages. To request more information on Multifunctional Resource Centers, contact the Office of Bilingual Education and Minority Languages Affairs, U.S. Department of Education, 400 Maryland Avenue SW, Washington, DC 20202, telephone (202) 205-9072; or the National Clearinghouse for Bilingual Education, 1118 22nd Street NW, Washington, DC 20037, telephone (202) 467-0867.

National Resource Centers for Foreign Language and Area Studies

The National Resource Centers Program is designed to provide grants to institutions of higher education to establish, operate, and strengthen National Resource Centers for the teaching of foreign languages, area studies, and the international and foreign language aspects of professional studies. Grants are awarded to Centers that focus on a world area, such as East Asia, Africa, or the Middle East, and that offer instruction in the principal languages of the area and in those disciplinary fields necessary to provide a full understanding of the area.

In addition to providing language and area studies instruction, many National Resource Centers offer services, including responding to letter and phone information requests, consulting, outreach programs, conferences, workshops, and publications.

For more information on the National Resource Centers program, contact Joseph F. Belmonte, Branch Chief, Advanced Research and Training Branch, Center for International Education, U.S. Department of Education, Washington, DC 20202-5331, telephone (202) 708-8769.

The currently funded National Resource Centers and the languages they teach are listed on the following pages under these headings: Africa; Canada; East Asia; Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union; Inner Asia; international studies; Latin America; Middle East; Pacific Islands; South Asia; Southeast Asia; and Western Europe. The name of the Foreign Language and Area Studies (FLAS) coordinator or the outreach coordinator for each NRC is also provided.

Language in Education: Theory and Practice

ERIC (Educational Resources Information Center) is a nationwide network of information centers, each responsible for a given educational level or field of study. ERIC is supported by the Office of Educational Research and Improvement of the U.S. Department of Education. The basic objective of ERIC is to make current developments in educational research, instruction, and personnel preparation readily accessible to educators and members of related professions.

The ERIC Clearinghouse on Languages and Linguistics (ERIC/CLL), one of the specialized clearinghouses in the ERIC system, is operated by the Center for Applied Linguistics (CAL). ERIC/CLL is specifically responsible for the collection and dissemination of information on research in languages and linguistics and on the application of research to language teaching and learning.

ERIC/CLL commissions recognized authorities in languages and linguistics to write about current issues in the field. The resultant monographs, intended for use by educators, researchers, and others interested in language education, are published under the series title, Language in Education: Theory and Practice. The series includes practical guides for classroom teachers, state-of-the-art papers, research reviews, and collected reports.

Publications in the Language in Education: Theory and Practice series can be purchased directly from Delta Systems (800-323-8270). Reproductions are also available from the ERIC Document Reproduction Service, Alexandria, Virginia (800-443-3742).

For further information on the ERIC system, ERIC/CLL, and ERIC/CLL publications, write to ERIC Clearinghouse on Languages and Linguistics, Center for Applied Linguistics, 1118 22nd Street, NW, Washington, DC 20037.

SPEAKING OF LANGUAGE

An International Guide to Language Service Organizations

Paula Conru, Vickie Lowelling, Whitney Stewart

Speaking of Language is an expanded and updated version of the Directory of Foreign Language Service Organizations by Sophia A. Behrens, first published by CAL in 1978 (2nd ed., 1981; 3rd ed., 1985). Teachers, students, and others interested in languages and cultures will find this directory to be an invaluable guide to resources and services related to language study and teaching. With over 200 organizations listed, the directory includes a special index of more than 160 languages and a general index that will help the reader find information on topics such as study abroad programs, ESL teaching opportunities, foreign language teaching materials, and computer-assisted language learning.
